A transformative student experience

Voiceover:

There's more to life at the Melbourne Graduate School of Management than just study. The dedicated Student Experience team is here to help you make the most of your time here and add value to your degree.

Clare Harper, Manager, Student Experience:

We work with students to offer a range of activities and programs which form an essential part of the student experience. Our activities enrich our students' university experience by supporting their learning, developing their skills and helping them realise their potential as a leader and an active global citizen.

Voiceover:

Covering all aspects of student life, our activities extend beyond the classroom to enrich your studies and prepare you for success after graduation.

Gopal Sapharu (India), Vice President of the Melbourne GSM Student Association, Master of Business and IT:

The Student Association runs a mixture of social and networking events which would be helpful for students to improve their management skills, communication skills. At this point in time we have close to nine events which we've planned for the next semester, for the new students coming in.

Guilherme Gomes (Brazil), Master of Commerce (Finance):

I'm part of LASA, the Latin American Students Association, and we are a group of Latin American students that tries to promote the culture, and to help other students that are coming from these countries, and to keep them integrated here in the [University].

Patricia Migallos, Master of Applied Commerce (Marketing) 2008, President, Melbourne GSM Student Group 2007-08:

There are a range of activities you can do here and it all depends on what you want to do and how much time you want to commit.

Clare Harper, Manager, Student Experience:

Our students can study on exchange at one of our partner business schools around the world or they can enrol in the Global Business Practicum subject where they earn credit for undertaking a workplace project at a prominent company overseas.

Rebecca Hobden, Student Experience Officer:

The diverse mix of students at the Melbourne Graduate School of Management means they don't only learn about different cultures studying together but also through events such as the Latin American film festival and Mexican photo exhibition.

Avin Luther, Master of Applied Finance (part-time), Relationship Manager, Commonwealth Bank:

The Global Business Practicum is a two week subject in either Singapore or Thailand where you get to work with a company over there on a real life business project, assist them if you can during that period and come back and write a report on your experiences. I was interested in the business practicum, it gives me an opportunity to experience a different business culture and also work in an environment different to my own, and work with a different group of peers than I normally would in my current employment.

Noor Goethals, Student Experience Officer:

We encourage you to be involved both on and off campus in community engagement, leadership and volunteering activities.

Patricia Migallos, Master of Applied Commerce (Marketing) 2008, President, Melbourne GSM Student Group 2007-08:

Joining a lot of activities will give you the opportunity to meet a lot of people from different backgrounds, so you will be able to build on a lot of skills like networking and just presenting yourself really well. I was personally involved in the Melbourne GSM Student Group, so you can go on exchange, or you can do an internship in another country, or you can do sports.

Clare Harper, Manager, Student Experience:

Or maybe you just want to come along to one of our social events and relax with your fellow students after a long week of studying. Either way, we're sure that you'll find something to enrich your student experience here at the Melbourne Graduate School of Management.
